

With Sunday NFL football set to start tomorrow, it is with great disappointment that we must announce that Scorecard will NOT feature NFL Sunday ticket this season. Though DirecTV has made the effort to make the package more affordable, there is no path to profitability with the restrictions currently placed upon the restaurant industry within the State of Pennsylvania. We held out as long as possible on this announcement because we were hoping that our Governor would ease restrictions to 50% unconditionally, but without bar seating, we will not be able to seat the number of patrons needed to make Sunday Ticket worth the money. If capacity is eased to 50% within a few days of this announcement, without the other restrictions that were still in place with the Governor's new order on September 9th, there might be time to reconsider, but under the current conditions this is how it will have to be. We will still be open for our customers to come watch whichever games are on Fox 29 and CBS 3, and of course you can always order takeout if you plan to watch games at home. Thanks for the understanding and hopefully things will change soon.
